Stewart Morris, one of the most prominent of Atlanta's younger investment securities experts, died Sunday in the Phoenix Motor Memorial hospital at Albany, Ga., following an automobile accident on Kinchpoo creek bridge two and a half miles south of that city Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Morris, associated with Courts & Company in the bond department, was on his way to Radium Springs for a tennis tournament. At the time of the accident he was driving with George Niles, of Atlanta, also a tennis enthusiast, who was unhurt. He was taken to the hospital and at first it was not thought his injuries were critical. He appeared to have suffered nothing worse than a broken arm at that time.

Early Sunday morning, however, it was found that he had received severe internal injuries. He was conscious until his death.

Mr. Morris, a graduate of Georgia Tech, was one of the most prominent young men in Atlanta both in business and socially. He was 34 years of age. He was one of the founders of the Biltmore Tennis Club and was one of its directors. He also was a member of the Piedmont Driving Club.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Morris, of Peachtree road, and is survived by his parents, a sister, Miss Mary Morris, and a brother, Jack Morris. His sister attends Washington Seminary, while his brother is in business in Washington, D. C.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed early Sunday night. Mr. Morris' parents reached Atlanta Sunday night from Washington, D. C., where they were visiting when news of the accident reached them.

Offer To Surrender Made by Machado

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Dr. Orestes Ferrara, former Cuban secretary of state, announced today that he had offered to surrender to federal authorities for extradition, provided they grant him certain guarantees.

"President Machado is anxious to surrender," Dr. Ferrara said. "He feels keenly the humiliation of being hunted like a criminal, his family and his friends."

"Yet he cannot give himself up, without the arrival of the papers containing the charges against him. Should he do so, he could, under the extradition treaty, be held in jail for two months pending the arrival of these papers."

"A demand has been made on the Cuban consulate for these papers, but they state that the documents have not arrived."

Ancient Turk Near Death In Children's Hospital

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 29.—(AP)—Zaro Agha, who claims to be the world's oldest person, was gravely ill in the National Children's hospital today.

His 70-year-old grandson kept watch at the bedside of the aged Turk, who says he is 100.

Although in a serious condition, Zaro Agha is showing surprising resistance, doctors said, such as might be expected from a much younger person. He is suffering from Bright's disease.

Dr. Behdjet Sabit, who is handling the case, said all possible being done to save Zaro's life. The super-centenarian passed a disturbed night but at dawn was able to get some rest, thanks to hypodermic injections.

Most of the time the Turk, who visited America four years ago, is asleep, prostrated by weakness. Analyses of his blood showed an acute kidney inflammation, physicians reported.

ALABAMA HOLDS POLITICAL 'SPOT' IN TUESDAY VOTE

5 Congressmen Ask Re- nomination as 3 Fight for Governorship; "Scottsboro" Judge Up.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 29.—(AP)—Alabama moved into the nation's political spotlight tonight with the battle of five congressmen, four of them veterans, for re-nomination sharing interest with quadrennial election of candidates for all state and county offices.

President Roosevelt's "new deal" has been discussed from every stump in the state, and every candidate has proclaimed his leadership and pledged fealty to his program.

The three candidates for governor, Judge Leon McCord and former Governor Bibb Graves, both of Montgomery, and Frank Dixon, of Birmingham, all have declared they would support his policies and bring to Alabama a "new deal."

The judicial race for the eighth judicial district also is attracting attention, as Judge James E. Horton, who last June set aside a death sentence in the "Scottsboro" case, is opposed by Osceola Kyle, of Decatur, and A. A. Griffith, of Cullman.

Background.

The "Scottsboro" case, however, has not figured openly in the campaign, though it is the background and many believed it will figure prominently in the voting, particularly in Morgan county, scene of the trials.

Only two other of nine candidates whose official duties have brought them into the case are opposed for

Normality Returning In Alabama Coal Field

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 29.—(AP)—Conditions approaching normal in Alabama's coal fields and the industrial district of Birmingham tonight appeared nearer with coal operators and union officials reaching an understanding on technicalities of the Republic Steel Corporation returning a blast furnace to production.

Representative of operators and the United Mine Workers of America today conferred with Wayne Ellis, deputy NRA administrator in charge of the coal code, and later, announced most mines would go into production tomorrow.

TRADE, INDUSTRY IN ATLANTA AREA SHOW BIG GAINS

Department Store Sales Increase 54 Per Cent Over March, 1933, Bank Review Reveals.

Vivid picture of the accelerating improvement in business, industry and finance in the Atlanta area is reflected in the statistics gathered by the Sixth District Federal Reserve bank and made public in the monthly review of conditions released Sunday for publication.

Retail trade in the Atlanta area increased 54.1 per cent in March, 1934, as compared with the same month one year ago, according to the figures compiled by the bank. The figure is based upon reports from six department stores in the Atlanta trade area.

The percentage of increase over February, 1934, the preceding month, was 49.8 per cent, while total retail trade for the year shows an increase of 39.7 per cent over the first three months of 1933.

The increase for the entire district was 69.8 per cent over March, 1933, and 35.2 per cent over February last. For the three-month period the district increase was 45.8 per cent.

Building permits in the Atlanta area show a total value increase of 142.8 per cent for March, 1934, over March, 1933, the figures for the comparable months being $124,733 and $31,397. There were 199 permits issued in the area for March this year and 176 for March, 1933.

Retail Trade Gains.

Indices on department store trade for the Atlanta area for the three months of the year, after adjustment for seasonal variation, show 139.3 per cent for January, 142.6 per cent for February and 167.7 per cent for March. These percentages are arrived at by using the average sales during 1923, 1924 and 1925 as the means, or 100 per cent figure.

Savings deposits in three banks in the Atlanta area show an increase of 12 per cent for March, compared with the same month a year ago, although the total this March is a shade below that for February.

Referring to conditions in the entire sixth district, the bank reports, "substantial increases over February in most lines of trade and industrial activity and all of these compare favorably with the March of last year, which included the period of the bank holiday."

In addition, the report went on, "after adjustment for the number of business days in the month, and the usual seasonal changes, including the earlier date of Easter, the adjusted index for department store sales for March is higher than for any other month since August, 1931."

Wholesale Trade Better.

Wholesale trade rose 9.4 per cent from February to March and was 56.6 per cent greater than a year ago. Life insurance sales increased 17.2 per cent in March over February and were 61.2 per cent greater than in March, 1933.

The daily average demand deposits of all member banks in the district, the federal reserve report continued, rose "further in March to the highest level since October, 1931, and daily average time deposits also increased."

Substantial gains in building and construction also were reported. Contracts awarded in March showed a gain of 73.1 per cent over February and were five times as great as those awarded in March a year ago. Residential construction increased 80.5 per cent from February to March and other classes of contracts 72.3 per cent.

Cotton consumption for March was 14.4 per cent greater than in February and was 9.7 per cent greater than for March a year ago. Employment at reporting mills increased 3 per cent from February to March and was 16.5 per cent greater than in March, 1933.

Coal Production Rises.

Production of coal increased in Tennessee and declined somewhat in Alabama, as compared with February, the review said, but in both states was substantially greater than a year ago. Daily average production of pig iron in Alabama was about the same in March as in February but it was four and one-half times the total for March, 1933.

As to agriculture, the review said some staple crops were up to good stands in parts of Georgia, adding that weather conditions in most parts of the state were unfavorable in March for farm work and crop progress. Since April 1, however, the report said, weather conditions have been more favorable and farming operations have progressed rapidly. The peach crop was reported to have suffered but little from cold weather in the south. The April 1 estimate of the Florida citrus crop was 16.5 million boxes of oranges and 9.8 million boxes of grapefruit.

The sixth district report said that national business conditions and employment also were showing increases.

TRUCK OPERATORS ACCEPT RATE CUT BY HIGHWAYMAN

New Scale, Saving Hun- dreds of Thousands, Ef- fective Midnight Tonight.

Commercial truck operators in Georgia will put into effect at midnight tonight freight rate cuts ordered by the Georgia public service commission, it was announced Sunday by Hugh Howell, attorney for the truck operators.

This reduction, which averages about 27 per cent on all commodities hauled, was ordered into effect May 1 and has been accepted by the truck operators without dispute, Mr. Howell said. It will mean a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars to Georgia shippers, he pointed out, and will prove of incalculable benefit to industry, agriculture and commerce generally.

The new rates for truck freightage go into effect just after 33 railroads operating inside Georgia have obtained a temporary injunction enjoining the public service commission from decreasing class freight rates and sand and gravel rates in the state. This injunction was granted on Saturday by a three-judge federal court.

Referring to the new rates Sunday, Governor Eugene Talmadge said that it was now up to the railroads to reduce their charges.

"The railroads can haul freight cheaper than the trucks," said the governor. "The trucks have accepted the cut and it is now up to the railroads to do likewise."

The new schedule will be the same as is in effect in the northern and eastern territories, it was stated.

Members of the public service commission have said that under the new truck schedule the rates on the same commodity would be in the same class both for the railroads and for trucks. Various rates are charged for various commodities, according to the classification under which they fall.

No estimate of the saving to be effected by the change could be made on account of the wide divergence of quantity hauled of varying products. One official said, however, that he understood there are now at least 2,000 commercial trucks hauling freight in Georgia.

Pomp and Pageantry to Mark Better Times Parade Tonight

Atlanta's "Better Times" parade, once postponed because of inclement weather, will swing into line at 7 o'clock tonight at Peachtree and Bay streets and thence to the city hall, where the parade will disband after selection of prize winners in the various divisions.

2 BIG OBSTACLES LOOKING IN PATH TO ADJOURNMENT

Congress Enters Fifth Month of Session With Tariff and Stock Market Battles Brewing.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(UP)—Congress goes into the fifth month of its session this week with adjournment still weeks in the future and with at least two highly controversial issues unsettled.

There also remains a mass of secondary legislation, most of which is piling up in the senate and adding to the difficulties in the way of President Roosevelt's goal of adjournment by late May.

Senate Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson has summoned democrats in that body to a meeting tomorrow night to get a cross-section of opinion on the pending reciprocal tariff bill, regarded by many persons as the key log in the legislative jam.

Power for President.

The bill would give President Roosevelt authority to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements and to raise or lower American rates 50 per cent. The measure is on the roll of "must" legislation compiled by the administration, but many weary hours of debate in the senate are foreseen before it can become law.

Robinson recognizes there is considerable opposition to the tariff bill, most of it being based upon the fact that the measure does not give industries, which would be affected by tariff changes a chance to have a hearing before the change is ordered. Many senators, it was said, would be willing to support the measure if any amendment providing for a hearing is accepted. All administration leaders, including Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who have appeared before congressional committees in behalf of the bill have urged passage in its present form.

Big Up Today.

The house began consideration tomorrow of the stock market regulation bill, which is certain to cause a hard floor fight in both branches of congress. Representative Fred Britten, republican, Illinois, opened the battle against it tonight by calling it "the fifth and probably the last bill for the regulation of the country's industries that will come from the youthful intellectuals who have framed most of the 'planned legislation' during the present session of congress."

Business interests in all sections of the country have attacked the bill, contending it will choke the flow of private capital into industry and thereby retard recovery.

Robinson's senate program calls for consideration of the stock market regulation bill, the corporation bankruptcy measure and the corporation bankruptcy bill. That shuts the tariff bill into the indefinite future.

The senate silver bloc, pessimistic about the chances of success, is still determined, however, to press for mandatory legislation to nationalize the metal. Debate will be lengthy and heated when the Dies bill carrying senate committee amendments calling for the government to purchase large quantities of silver, comes up for consideration.

Nathan Stoler Wounded In Attempted Holdup; Another Robbery Foiled.

Nathan Stoler, proprietor of a lunch stand at 226 Forrest avenue, N. E., was shot and seriously wounded by two negro bandits in an attempted holdup at 11 o'clock Sunday night, according to reports to police.

Stoler, who lives on Forrest avenue, was en route home with the day's receipts in his pockets when he was accosted at Forrest avenue near Butler street by two negro bandits.

They commanded him to hold up his hands and to turn over his money, but before he could raise his hands the negroes shot him through the left side of the chest.

Supernumerary Patrolman J. D. Corley, of 184 Whiteford avenue, and W. A. Cagle, of 732 Manigault street, riding on Forrest avenue in an automobile, heard the shooting and rushed to the scene in time to see the negroes flee down the street aflood, but the officer and his companion were unable to overtake the bandits.

Corley and Cagle took Stoler to the Georgia Baptist hospital, where early Monday morning his condition had not been definitely determined. It was not believed by the physicians, however, that the man was critically wounded.

Vienna Political Pot Again Nearing Boil

VIENNA, April 29.—(AP)—Subterranean passages of Vienna and the public square at Linz, where the central points of political activity in Austria.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was the featured orator at Linz in a sort of dress rehearsal of the May Day constitution celebration.

In Vienna police feverishly searched labyrinthine sewers for dynamite, they seized two men in an underground passage leading under the heilmwehr, or fascist homeguard, headquarters, close to the Creditanstalt, Austria's biggest bank.

An official report said the men probably were burglars, intent on entering a jewelry shop or the bank from below, but in Heilmwehr circles the opinion was circulated that the men were preparing to lay explosives.

In any case, a search of sewers continued and a close underground watch will be maintained until after May Day.

DETROIT BEATS DORET IN AERIAL STUNT TILT

PARIS, April 29.—(UP)—Michael Doretout thrilled thousands of aviation enthusiasts at Vincennes today in a daredevil aerial stunt-flying contest in which he defeated Marcel Doret.

Their stunts were almost equally thrilling but Doretout, a close friend of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, won the match with a spectacular power dive of 3,000 feet. He pointed the nose of his little stunt ship toward the earth and did not level off until within 100 feet of the ground.

It seemed impossible that he could bring it out of the dive at that height, but with perfect control Doretout soared off and up again, leaving the stands gasping.

The contest was for the national championship, and was a prelude to the first world's aerobatic flying championship to be held June 9-10.

STIMSON PRAISES ROOSEVELT'S PLAN FOR TARIFF CHANGE

Hoover Cabinet Member Breaks With Fellow Re- publicans To Give Hearty Approval to Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—The Hoover cabinet secretary of state heartily endorsed today that target of virulent republican attack, the Roosevelt tariff bill, while democratic leaders rested confidently upon their plans for speeding it through the senate.

"I think that some such legislation should be promptly passed to meet the emergency that confronts us," said Henry L. Stimson in an address under the auspices of the intercollegiate council of international education.

"I am not impressed with the objection that it would give undue or dictatorial powers to our executive. It does not seem to me that such objections are well founded. The legislation is for the purpose of meeting an emergency situation. I see no reason to believe it will be abused."

Passed by House.

The bill, already passed by the house, would empower President Roosevelt to negotiate trade agreements with other nations under which tariffs on stipulated commodities

DILLINGER HUNT ENTERS 9TH WEEK

Law Presses Search for Bremer Kidnapers To Forestall Their Execu- tion by Gang Guns.

BULLETIN.

TUCSON, Ariz., April 29.—(AP)—Investigation of the kidnaping of June Robles appeared nearing a climax tonight, with 73-year-old Bernabe Robles, reputedly wealthy grandfather of the child, on a secret mission in Sonora, Mexico, and the U. S. department of justice formally assuming charge of all undercover activities.

Robles crossed the international boundary at Nogales, accompanied only by Henry Robinson, Tucson city councilman and long-time friend of the Robles family. They were believed to be going to Santa Ana, 75 miles below the border.

By the Associated Press.

As darkness fell Sunday night with no trace having been found of 6-year-old June Robles, kidnaped Tucson heiress, fears for the life of the little girl grew graver. She was snatched from the Arizona city Wednesday and hopes for her early release were raised Friday when her family contacted the abductors and police withdrew from the case to facilitate negotiations for the payment of the $100,000 ransom demanded by her captors.

Sunday, however, officers had renewed an intensive, though fruitless, search and this was taken as an indication of failure in the negotiations for her return. Meantime rumors persisted linking the name of Dillinger with the abduction. Some residents of Tucson believed the No. 1 public enemy had planned to kidnap the Tucson police, who were called "hick cops" by him after they captured him before his brief sojourn in the Crown Point jail.

Canyon Searched.

Through a remote canyon in the Catalina mountains peace officers stalked in efforts to find the girl. The search was hampered by the fact that a car entered the rugged area on the day of the kidnaping but was not seen to leave. Abandoned cabins stood the night.

Three Ohio penitentiary convicts escaped Sunday at Columbus as federal agents and peace officers over the nation pushed pursuit of a dozen or more notorious criminals.

Rufus Deeds, 40, a robber; Arthur R. Kuntz, 40, automobile thief, and Martin Schmidt, 37, robber, posing as if ordered to do repair work, gained admittance to a turret, brandished a revolver, disarmed a guard. Then they dropped over the wall to freedom from the prison, strongly guarded because of fears that the roving John Dillinger might attempt to free three of his henchmen held there.

Two escaped Illinois convicts, one of them, Eugene Norvell, serving a life term for the abduction last July of August Luer, aged Alton banker, were at large repeating the hills near the state prison at Chester from which they disappeared Friday after crawling through a sewer.

The search for Dillinger and his mobmen went into its ninth week.

Dog 'Reborn' by Research Worker Gaining Strength, Tests Show

BERKLEY, Calif., April 29.—(AP) "Thirteen," the dog whose recorded life history began with his clinical death, continues to gain strength in a University of California laboratory today, 16 days after his scientific "rebirth." Records kept by Dr. Robert E. Corning, young research worker who is conducting the life restoration experiment, show the animal has exhibited steady physical improvement, although still semi-conscious.

"The animal," said Dr. Corning, "is not unconscious. He probably has a considerably greater degree of consciousness than a normal dog sleeping. In fact, Friday night, for the first time, he slept much as a normal dog, curled up and resting partly on his forefeet."

"His condition when 'awake' is much like that of a thoroughly intoxicated man."

Following is the record of "Thirteen's" progress, as kept by Dr. Corning:

Friday, April 13—3:58 p. m.—Started giving dog ether.

4:01 p. m.—Dog unconscious.

4:06 p. m.—Breathing stopped.

4:08 p. m.—Heart stopped beating. Death occurred according to medical standards.

4:11 p. m.—Started resuscitation.

4:12 p. m.—Injected 150 C. C. of adrenalin, heparin and defibrinated blood.

4:12 1-2 p. m.—Heart beats and breathing started. Dog restored to life.

4:30 p. m.—Dog barked.

10:35 p. m.—Heart rate increased alarmingly. A solution of gum arabic injected.

Saturday, April 14, 12:40 a. m.—Heart rate normal.

11:00 a. m.—Heart rate again increased. Dog near death. Three hundred C. C. salt solution injected.

6:08 p. m.—Heart rate normal.

Sunday, April 15—Glucose injections given to nourish dog.

Thursday, April 19—Another crisis averted by salt solution injections.

Saturday, April 21—Dog ate liver, started to gain weight.

Friday, April 27—Enjoyed normal night's sleep.

Slain by Bandits.

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—Vernon Charles Emory, 34-year-old optician, died today, the second victim of a pair of ruthless negro bandits who raided a south side saloon late Friday night. Without provocation, the robbers opened fire at the patrons of the place. Walter Frank, 40, a real estate dealer, was instantly killed. The assailants have not been apprehended.

FEARS INCREASE FOR GIRL'S SAFETY

No Trace Found of Tucson Child Kidnaped Wednesday.

With tip-tipped federal officers aided by local authorities following numerous leads but divulging little of their progress.

Federal agents and Chicago police searched their hunt for persons reported involved in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, in fear that gangland gues might silence any who could give information concerning the case. Five persons already are held, four on charges of conspiracy to obtain ransom money.

Seattle authorities went to Los Angeles to question two negroes concerning the "mass murders" a month ago of Frank Fleider; his wife, Anna, and their four guests at the Fleider home near Bremerton, Wash. A third man was sought in Seattle. Officers said they believed the murders were committed by torture robbers seeking $5,000 in bonds belonging to Mrs. Fleider. The bonds later were found in a safety deposit box.

Chicago and New York police took precautions to guard against violence in May Day celebrations Tuesday night. Guards ordered stationed at many public and private buildings and homes of some officials. In Chicago last May Day five bombings occurred, all in the Loop.

In Jersey City, N. J., a Catholic priest, the Rev. Julius Moscati, was slain as he stepped between his sister-in-law, Mrs. Christina Moscati, and the pistol of a Newark carpenter, Dominica Marra, 40, who was charged with murder. Police quoted the slayer as saying he intended to shoot the woman because of a debt. She was wounded.

Patrolman Fred W. Nolan, 44, was shot and killed, apparently without cause, by a man one of the busiest corners in St. Cloud, Minn., a few hours later a disheveled man hiding under a railroad bridge was taken into custody for questioning.

INTENSIVE SEARCH FAILS TO LOCATE MISSING GIRL

TUCSON, Ariz., April 29.—(AP)—A party of eight weary peace officers stalked a remote canyon of the Catalina mountains today in an unsuccessful search for a year-old June Bohles and her kidnappers.

The search was intensive in the area three miles north of Steam Pump ranch, one of the most noted landmarks on the Tucson-Florence highway and near the Canada Del Oro Canyon of Gold, famous mining area of a past era.

Ad Adkinson, Tucson hunter, and several others reported they had seen an automobile enter the canyon over the rugged, cactus-studded road last Wednesday, when the child was stolen for $15,000 ransom. The car was not seen to leave the canyon. There are a number of abandoned mining shafts and deserted cabins in the district.

Meanwhile, in Tucson the rumor persisted that members of John Dillinger's gang were back of the child stealing. It was here that Dillinger was captured several months ago, and the story was that the Indiana outlaw had delivered the child to a reduction to embarrass Tucson police, to whom he had referred as "hick town cops." Officials declined comment.

THREE CONVICTS ESCAPE PENITENTIARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 29.—(AP)—Three Ohio penitentiary convicts climbed into the northwest guard tower of the prison at 2:30 p. m. today, covered a guard with pistols, disarmed him and escaped over the wall.

The convicts, identified by prison attaches as Rufus Deeds, 40; Arthur R. Koonz, 40, and another named Schmidt, escaped in a stolen automobile.

They menaced a passer-by who attempted to halt them.

The fleeing trio was reported to have switched automobiles at the outskirts of Columbus, stealing a second car to speed in the direction of Marysville, 30 miles northwest of here, on state Route 31.

Prison officials immediately laid down a net which they hoped would catch the fleeing prisoners. An alarm was broadcast by the state highway patrol radio station here.

The third member of the trio later was identified as Martin Schmidt, 37.

With the first two days' attendance estimated by fair officials at 15,000, the "Fiesta of Fun" at Lakewood, the first of weather conditions. Atlanta's first "Fiesta of Fun" and the Georgia Products Exposition will enter its third day today at Lakewood Park.

Provisional exhibition buildings, weather permitting, to have the carnival attractions along the midway and the exhibits open and in full swing tonight, for the entertainment of the large crowd which is expected to overflow the park following the downtown parade.

Autoists in large numbers rode out to the park Sunday afternoon, and fair officials reported that the weather, despite intermittent showers, was favorable for the fair.

Many visitors filed through the buildings housing the Georgia products and the pigeon, poultry and rabbit shows, and a good crowd was on hand for the "Fiesta of Fun" show, which is under direction of Kenneth Murrell, entertainment chairman of the American Legion.

Today at the exposition will be Red serving a 20-year to life sentence for robbery from Hancock county.

Koonz entered the pen in 1927 from Franklin county (Columbus) for automobile stealing. Deeds was serving a 20-year term for robbery from Lawrence county.

LAW RACES UNDERWORLD FOR BREMER KIDNAPERS

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—Federal agents raced the underworld today in efforts to apprehend the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, whose freedom early this year cost $200,000.

Authorities held five persons in custody in the case here—two of whose identities were shrouded in mystery—intimated they were fearful of gangland gues might go to others before they could be arrested or make any disclosures to the investigators.

Safety of those who might talk about Bremer ransom money apparently were well founded. The authorities based them on the contention they were afraid to others before they could be arrested or make any disclosures to the investigators.

The search was intensive in the area three miles north of Steam Pump ranch, one of the most noted landmarks on the Tucson-Florence highway and near the Canada Del Oro Canyon of Gold, famous mining area of a past era.

renomination, Thomas E. Knight Jr., attorney-general, seeking nomination for lieutenant governor, and Wade Wright, solicitor of the eighth district. The "Scottsboro case" does not figure in these races, although both were prosecutors in the trials.

Alabama's congressmen with few exceptions have consistently supported the administration's policy in Washington, but several deserted the administration and voted to override the president's veto of the bill carrying increased allowances to veterans.

This defection or lack of it has been made campaign material by its opponents, while records have been largely the issue in each district.

Hill in Race.

Interest was general in the race in the fifth district where former Senator J. Thomas Hillin who was barred from the 1930 primaries because of his opposition to the national ticket in 1928, and lost as an independent to Senator John H. Bankhead, is seeking a "political comeback."

It was from this same district, though altered by the reapportionment of 1931, that Hillin went to congress. He opposes Congressman Miles B. Allgood, of Gadsden, and Major Joe Starnes, of Guntersville. The campaign has been a quiet one, however, devoid of spectacular features.

Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of Anniston, is opposed in the fourth district by Judge S. F. Hobbs, of Selma; the battle has been a warm one, with Jeffers standing on his record and his fealty to the veterans cause and Hobbs declaring his record did not justify his retention.

In the sixth district, Congressman W. B. Oliver, who has been unopposed during his 20 years tenure, is opposed by Pete B. Jarman, a retired state, and former state commander of the American Legion, and Thomas H. Maxwell, a Tuscaloosa attorney.

Judge F. S. Johnson Jr., of Florence, has been waging an intensive campaign in the eighth district to wrest the nomination from Congressman H. Carmichael, who was elected last fall to fill the unexpired term of the late E. B. Almon.

The veteran, George Huddleston, who has opposed the administration several times and whose defeat the late President Woodrow Wilson sought in 1918, for his opposition to time measures, has three opponents in the ninth district. They are Walter Brower, Birmingham attorney, and champion of public ownership; William H. Starnes, Aker, aviator and World War veteran, and M. B. Grace.

Others Unopposed.

The other four candidates are unopposed.

Interest in county races and in governorship contest has become so intense that a record primary vote, some estimate it at 250,000, has been forecast.

It is in the governor's race that the "new deal" has figured most prominently. With McCord, national democratic executive committeeman, charging Graves was a party to a "stop Roosevelt" movement in Alabama in 1930, and Dixon declaring that his proposal for reorganization of state government coincides with the president's ideas.

Prohibition figures in each of the platforms, and although all are different, the question of modifying or repealing the state's stringent dry laws has not been a major issue.

Graves would submit the question law to vote in three phases, McCord declaring for light wines and beer to promote temperance, and Dixon's platform is for beer and wine with apportioned liquor sold in sealed packages from state stores and counties which vote it.

All three gubernatorial candidates have declared they would sponsor reductions in license tags for automobiles.

Dixon has said he would support a sales tax, moot question in the state for two years, only if it was necessary to finance the state.

The primary Tuesday will be the first under the new double primary law in which a full state and county ticket has been selected, and under its provisions, in cases where no candidate receives a clear majority, the two highest will enter a run-off on June 12.

Emory Symphony Pleases Audience In Final Sunday Afternoon Concert

The Emory University Little Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, closed its twelfth season with its forty-third Sunday afternoon concert yesterday afternoon in Glenn Memorial auditorium, in a program that distinctly marked the progress this organization has made as a young amateur band of college boys who play solely for the joy they derive from orchestral playing. To listen to this group of youths and to realize the cultural traditions they are upholding, not only for their Alma Mater, but for the community as well, is a gratifying experience.

They play off key sometimes, it is true, but their general grasp and the spirit of their performances remain pleasing and their accompaniments are worthy of commendation. Dr. Dewey deserves every bit of the praise of the large and appreciative audience, that, baritone, presenting a program of the orchestra's repertoire, "Ballet," from Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis," "Ase's Death," from Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite," "Valse de Fleurs," from Tchaikovsky's "Suite," and "March" from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Other important musical events of the day included the enjoyable vespers hour of music given at St. Philip's cathedral by Arthur Davis, organist of the cathedral, and Richard Holtzclaw, baritone, presenting a program that pleased a large audience; and the Mendelssohn program given by the choir of Peachtree Christian church, under the direction of the organist and choir director, Mrs. V. W. Clarke, satisfying again the artistic tastes of an appreciative audience.

Widow of Croker Seeks Congress Seat

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Bula E. Croker, widow of the late Tammany Hall chieftain, Richard Croker, today announced her candidacy for the Florida congressional district seat.

Mrs. Croker made her announcement at a veteran voters' district meeting at Lake Worth, in which the general theme of discussion was to "beat Representative Mark Wilcox" at the June democratic primary.

Mrs. Croker said she would immediately qualify for the race with the secretary of state. She pledged her support of veterans' legislation.

22 PLANES TO START CARIBBEAN HOP TODAY

QUANTICO, Va., April 29.—(AP)—Twenty-two airplanes were tuned tonight for the largest mass flight in the history of marine corps aviation—a 5,000-mile trip to the Caribbean to participate in the current "war" exercises.

The route includes hundreds of miles of flying over water, although all except one of the planes are land craft.

Leaving the marine corps base here at dawn tomorrow, the planes will stop at Fort Bragg, N. C., for fuel and continue to Miami, Fla., where they are due by dusk.

The contingent will rest up for a day in Miami and then proceed to Cuba, Haiti and Santo Domingo, to a secret base.

Lieutenant Colonel Ross E. Rowell, of Boise, Idaho, oldest flier in the marine corps, commands the contingent.

Nila Cram Cook Demands New Deal For Downtrodden Piccolo Players

NEW YORK, April 29.—(UP)—Nila Cram Cook, corn-fed Iowa girl who didn't do so well as a disciple of the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, today came out in defense of piccolo players.

Piccolo, as well as flute players, Miss Cook believes, are the most romantic of musicians. They are unduly and unfairly maligned by most Americans.

Addressing New York School of Music students, the former Goddess of the Blue Serpent, in her first public appearance since she arrived from India two months ago, said piccoloists and flutists in the east are esteemed. They are "the troubadours of India."

"I wonder how many people would continue to jest about the piccolo and the flute if they knew what powers of romance each possess," Nila said. "I am surprised at the lack of attention paid these instruments in America."

"Why don't people joke about saxophone players for a while instead of trying to weave a romantic atmosphere around them? There is more romance about one piccolo player than in a whole band of saxophonists.

"How anyone can expect to get romance out of a saxophone, a violin or even a ukulele is something I never could see. Saxophones are taboo in India."

Nila, in Indian costume, seated on the floor in the middle of the stage of the Washington Irving school, said there is no real romance in this country. That is reflected in the modern music.

"Here," she said, "you find nothing but jazz. Everywhere you go. There is no time for real romantic music."

"In India music is important. Different instruments are played at different times of the day. The flute generally at night."

"People picture flute players as charmers of snakes. It is true a flute charms snakes but it also charms women."

"It is through such music that Indians make love."

GRADY STAFF PRAISED BY PATIENT'S FAMILY

A letter praising Grady hospital and its staff of nurses and internes has been received by Superintendent J. B. Franklin from Arthur Thorpe, scoutmaster of troop 6, and signed by four other members of his family. The gratitude expressed was for services rendered to our sister and aunt during her recent critical illness.

The letter continued to say the patient received the best of care from nurses and supervisors and that despite the fact that "dolls were against recovery, the services of specialists and operations and every known means were used to combat the disease." Others signing the letter were Mrs. Arthur Thorpe, Miss Mary Ledbetter, Henry Ledbetter and Miss Elizabeth McMillan, of 106 North avenue, N. E.

Pittman Candidacy Not To Affect Bell

Contrary to reports published Sunday the entrance of Judge C. C. Pittman, of Cartersville, into the governorship campaign will have no effect on the situation of Madison Bell, of Cartersville and Atlanta, who is being widely urged to run for comptroller-general.

Mr. Bell ran for comptroller two years ago and polled a vote of more than 62,000 votes in a four-cornered race. He said Sunday the candidacy of Judge Pittman affected his status in no way. He is expected to make a decision on his future plans in a few days.

TAX COLLECTING COST SHOWS DROP IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—It cost the government about $1,750,000 less to collect $750,000,000 more in taxes during the first nine months of this fiscal year than it did in the corresponding period last year.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, reported today that it cost $21,270,854 to collect $1,962,339,156 for the nine-month period against $23,052,663 expended to collect $1,164,421,906 last year. This year's collection includes such new items as the liquor and processing taxes.

Part of the decrease in costs was credited to statutory reduction of salaries. Other factors included failure to fill vacancies and the filling of vacancies at lower pay grades.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER TO VISIT AUSTRALIA

LONDON, April 29.—(UP)—King George V has decided to send his third son, the Duke of Gloucester, to visit Australia in the fall instead of Prince George, youngest son of the British monarch, it was announced today. It was explained the change was made due to the heavy strain on the prince during his recent South African tour.

MAY DAY STRIKE LOOMS IN SPAIN

Socialists Plan Crippling General Walkout as Blow to Government.

MADRID, April 30.—(AP)—Socialists and extremists today announced plans for a crippling May Day general strike, while at Barcelona 150,000 Catalonians engaged in a five-hour series of street demonstrations against fascism and the agrarian law.

Preparations for precautions against May Day celebrations were begun by the government. A state of alarm was in effect here, plans for large socialist public meetings.

But a socialist newspaper told party members "we are determined to obtain power at any cost. A class battle looms on the horizon."

Despite a misty rain at Barcelona, multitudes flocked through the streets protesting against the danger threatening our freedom."

Orators of the left Catalonian parties sounded the theme that "we will raise the single-starred, red and yellow flag of the Catalonia republic should Spain accept fascism or the popular Agrarian type of dictatorship."

Members of the popular Agrarian party last Sunday held a huge demonstration, attended by disorders, at El Escorial, near Madrid.

A significant parade of more than 100,000 persons, including about 40,000 "rebaisaires" or truck farmers, wound through the principal streets bearing Catalonian banners, and shouting "down with fascism" and "down with Gilrobes" (leader of the Agrarian party).

Newspapers here did not publish this morning until Tuesday night.

DOUMERGUE ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF STRIKE

PARIS, April 29.—(AP)—France's fighting little premier, Gaston Doumergue, whose famous smile hides a stern will, today boldly took up the challenge of a May Day general strike.

The former president ordered one of the biggest police mobilizations, backed by the army, since the World War to crush any movement leading to civil war. Rebellion, he has already warned, holds the danger of "foreign invasion."

Final plans to throw the tightest possible guard around Paris, with the mobilization of every available man, were drawn today at a conference held with public order officials by Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior.

Army garrisons in the capital, at Versailles and elsewhere will be held in readiness to support police if necessary.

In Paris alone there are 18,000 police, 10,000 mobile guards—the men who did much shooting and fighting in the February riots—and 5,000 mounted guards.

Ten thousand police will patrol the streets, while 250 police cars will be held at strategic places, ready to rush to threatened spots on the direction of a radio-equipped airplane which will patrol the city.

This imposing display of force is counted upon to overawe communists and crush by sheer force of numbers any disorders, much according to the scheme followed in recent communist demonstrations, when heavy police cordons speedily broke up gatherings. They made 5,000 arrests, leaving the mobs leaderless and scattered.

RIOTING FOLLOWS DEFEAT OF FRENCH YOUNG TURK

MANTES, France, April 29.—(AP)—Serious rioting broke out today following a defeat at the polls of Gaston Bergery, "young Turk" candidate in a by-election for a seat in the chamber of deputies.

Thousands of partisans of Bergery and his rival candidate, Roger Sarret, clashed in the streets with many injuries resulting.

The outcome of the election greatly strengthened the position of Premier Gaston Doumergue's national government.

Followers of Bergery numbering 150 stormed the home of Mayor Dreyfus following the election in an effort to carry out a threat to burn his house if Bergery was defeated, because of his withdrawal from the election in favor of Sarret.

Dreyfus polled 800 votes in last Sunday's inconclusive election, and when he dropped out those votes were sufficient to bring victory to Sarret, whose margin was only 300.

Alleged Killer Foiled In Attempt to Escape

Victor Pierce, alleged slayer, came within half a bar of escaping from his cell in the Clayton county jail Saturday night. Sheriff E. L. Adamson, making his regular inspection round of the jail, discovered that all bars over the window of Pierce's cell had been filed in, with one exception, and that this final bar to escape was sawed half through.

Pierce is under indictment for the slaying of Stanley Dodge, proprietor of a roadhouse on the Macon highway. It is not known how he obtained the files used in cutting through his cell bars.

Committee To Discuss Council Cut Proposal

Several questions of primary importance will be considered by the special charter revision committee of city council when it holds its semi-monthly meeting tonight at the Ansley hotel.

Prominent among these will be the program for reduction in the personnel of council from 39 to 19 members, as suggested by Alderman G. Everett Millican, chairman of the committee. Under this plan the city governing body would consist of one councilman from each of the 13 wards and one alderman from each of six aldermanic districts to be fixed by council after approval of the change by the state legislature.

Other matters to be considered include revision of the pension features of the city charter and a proposal, by Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, to cut the legal rate of interest in Georgia from 8 to 6 per cent and to require registration with the city clerk of all instruments to secure debt.

The council reduction plan was overwhelmingly favored in a citywide referendum and Mayor James L. Key has urged early action to carry out the wishes of the voters.

PUP TO ANSWER TO "DEMITASSE," OWNER DECIDES

"Demitasse" is the name of the new Spitz puppy belonging to Miss Arline Lee Lennon, of 811 St. Charles avenue. The name was chosen by Miss Lennon from more than 50 suggestions telephoned to the house after she had advertised in The Constitution asking help in her christening predicament.

The puppy, a charming little ball of white fluff, was given to Miss Lennon by Roy Sockwell, of East Lake. The young owner, Miss Lennon, 14 years of age, was badly puzzled by the naming problem and, after she and her friends had tried in vain to agree on a name, it was decided to advertise for suggestions. Consequently the following advertisement appeared on Saturday morning in The Constitution:

"Call Jackson 3440-W and suggest name for an adorable male puppy."

Promptly Saturday morning the Lennon phone began to ring. Many suggestions, of course, were duplicated, but Miss Lennon made a list of more than 50 separate names offered.

She winnowed this list down to half a dozen on Sunday. They were Juan Vitar, Bing, King Tut, Duke and Demitasse, the one finally selected.

Exiled Leader Will Return to Tibet With Eye on Dalai Lama's Throne

HANGCHOW, China, April 29.—(AP)—The Panchen Lama, exiled former spiritual leader of Tibet, is returning to that mysterious land, possibly to succeed the late Dalai Lama as official ruler, it was announced today.

After 50 days of continuous prayer, the Panchen Lama will set out on the 3,000-mile overland journey for the mountainous reaches of central Asia from where he was expelled in 1924.

His projected return was revealed at the opening session of the national Buddhist convention here, over which the Panchen Lama, decked in the silken trappings of the Buddhist order, is presiding.

His return would be regarded as highly significant to central Asian politics. Tibet has been without an official ruler since the Dalai Lama died last September. Serious unrest has been reported in the land, both India and China being vitally concerned.

Ostensibly the purpose of the Panchen Lama's visit will be to establish closer relations between Tibet and China, strained for some years. Tibet has been politically independent since China became a republic in 1912.

It is believed here that the Panchen Lama, in addition to acting as an envoy on behalf of China, will seek to become the spiritual and temporal leader of the land, with powers equal to those of the late Dalai Lama.

Glowing tribute was paid the Panchen Lama at the gathering here today. Two hundred monks marched in silent procession through the monastery where the convention is being held and knelt in homage before him.

Enthroned in a sedan chair, decked in yellow silk and gold, the Tibetan religious leader returned this afternoon to Lingna monastery, followed by scores of chanting monks and thousands of Buddhist worshippers.

It was understood that authorities at Lhasa, capital of Tibet, invited the Panchen Lama to visit the country. His 10 years of exile have been spent in China.

CANNON AT SCENE OF CHURCH PARLEY

Reiterates Plan To Oppose Reported Move To Retire Him.

JACKSON, Miss., April 29.—(AP)—

Arriving here today to assume his duties with the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, Bishop James M. Cannon Jr., summed up his attitude against reported efforts in the conference to retire him in a single sentence, "I think everybody knows I have not hauled down my banner."

Other than that the 69-year-old Virginia churchman declined public comment, though he evidenced decided interest in the progress of the dry crusade in Mississippi where a referendum will be held July 10 on legalizing of liquor. He indicated that he was eager to face any charges or complaints that might be filed against him in a sentiment he has recognized as seeking to superannuate him.

Appearing tired after a long train trip from the national capital, the fighting bishop, after his breakfast and a morning rest girded himself for war, and then served notice on a group of fellow churchmen who are seeking his retirement that he would resist.

Bishop Cannon remained in his hotel room throughout the afternoon in conferences with fellow bishops and conference delegates.

At first the bishop said he intended to issue a formal statement in the day but tonight said he would wait until tomorrow. "I have been too occupied with other matters to prepare a statement," he said. Shortly before 9 a. m. the bishop stepped from his train from Washington, where he was acquitted Friday in District of Columbia supreme court of charges of conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act in the handling of political campaign funds in 1928.

There was no one at the station to greet him and he walked to a taxicab in which he rode to his hotel alone.

There Bishop Cannon rested undisturbed until after noon, refusing to discuss in any way rumors that certain groups in the conference would seek his voluntary retirement from the college of bishops at this conference, four years before his retirement would be binding under the automatic 72-year retirement rule.

Not Delivered.

The Virginia churchman's scheduled sermon was not delivered at the Little Fountains Presbyterian church, where services are held in a modest converted residence standing on a hill in a Jackson suburb.

The Rev. R. D. Bedinger, pastor of the church, informed the stream of motorists who congested the fashionable suburb that Bishop Cannon was resting from his tiresome trip from Washington.

Thousands of churchgoers, disappointed over being deprived of a chance to hear a much-anticipated address from the lips of the bishop, turned back, and the jam was so great that a special officer had to be stationed at the church to handle the traffic.

Dr. Marvin T. Haw, of Kansas City, substituted for Bishop Cannon at Fountains church. Dr. Haw stated that Bishop Cannon after his arrival informed the Rev. Dr. Bedinger that he did not know of the engagement beforehand and that he was too tired from his trip to preach today.

Bishop Cannon's only comment at the station was on his dry crusading. "We have been fighting liquor a long time," he said, "and will now have to get congress to take control."

No Charges.

It was freely admitted today that there were no charges against Bishop Cannon at present before the committee on episcopacy which passes on the character of the bishops.

Rev. J. W. Perry, of Chattanooga, chairman of the episcopacy committee, however, said the committee had received complaints against Bishop H. A. Boaz, of Houston, Texas, and that several Texas ministers had been heard on the complaints.

"The complaints are based on an alleged error and are not of a serious character," Dr. Perry said.

Bishop Boaz, when asked about the complaints said he had no comment to make at this time, but that he would issue a formal statement "as quickly as the committee reports," which he said would be Tuesday.

It was reported in conference circles that the episcopacy committee next Wednesday would recommend that retiring of bishops under the 62-year age rule be retained as against proposals among certain delegate groups to limit their terms to four or eight years.

The conference is to vote Thursday on bishops' terms, while tomorrow debate is expected on recommendations the itinerary committee is expected to make against a presiding elder immediately succeeding himself in his four-year circuit term.

Election of new bishops to succeed three retiring bishops and two members of the college who died during the past four years, is one of the most important subjects that will be reported on by the committee on episcopacy and acted upon by the conference.

Bishop Edwin D. Moulton, of Charlotte, N. C., expressed his opinion informally that the time was ripe to elect new bishops because the ranks would become further depleted by the retirement of four additional bishops at the general conference four years hence.

The four bishops to be retired in 1938 under the disciplined age of retirement are: James M. Cannon Jr., Richmond, H. A. Boaz, Houston; S. Hay, Fort Worth, and John M. Moore, of Dallas.

Moulton to Succeed Candler.

Bishop Moulton becomes senior member of the college of bishops at the current conference, succeeds Bishop Warren A. Candler, Atlanta, Ga., who is the oldest in point of service. The other bishops retiring at this conference are Collins Denny, Richmond, and H. M. DuRose, of Nashville.

that the bishop "started his ministerial career in Jackson in the Methodist church 37 years ago and ended it today in the Baptist church in Jackson."

"It took him a long time to get to the First Baptist," commented Dr. Hewitt.

Bishop Collins Denny, the other retiring official, spoke to an equally responsive audience at the Capital Street Methodist church. He was ordained in 1910.

The college of bishops enters the 1934 quadrennial conference with 11 active members and three retiring. Under the present membership with all bishops living and in good standing four years hence there would be only seven active and four retiring at the 1938 session.

HEAVY GOODS BODY OPPOSES PAY HIKE

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—

The great heavy goods industries tonight asserted that a general wage increase now would hinder, not help, national economic recovery.

George W. Houston, chairman of the durable goods industries committee, made public a report to Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, on this and other NRA problems.

Faith in the company union was reasserted, the national labor board and the Wagner bill assailed as encouraging industrial strife, and price-fixing approved as an emergency measure without indorsement of any one method of price determination.

The committee reported that lowest paid workers in February, 1934, were receiving 10.1 per cent more than a year previous and 13.4 per cent less than in 1929.

Bulk of Industry.

The heavy goods industries include the makers of steel, builders of locomotives and ships, manufacturers of agricultural equipment, producers of lumber—employers of the bulk of American labor.

The committee was formed at the suggestion of Johnson to advise him and its constituent code authorities on arising problems. A few days ago it was criticized in congress for leaving this field to attack the pending stock exchange control bill.

"The committee believes that any further general increase in wages at this time would retard and not encourage recovery," the report asserted.

It is the committee's firm belief that in the durable goods industries, where purchases can be postponed indefinitely, further increases in costs and resultant increased selling prices

TEXTILES PROSPER UNDER 'NEW DEAL'

Sea Island Meet Hears Coffin Tell of Gains; Labor Quiet.

SEA ISLAND BEACH, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—

Closing a year of profit for the first time in several years, executives of Southeastern Cottons, Inc., selling agency for 25 textile mills from North Carolina to Texas, look for another 12 months of increased business.

Howard Coffin, chairman of the board, speaking for the organization after the close today of a three-day gathering of executives for a short business session and festivities, said there was every indication of better business.

Coffin said the 35 mills included in the organization, through co-operative effort, did $51,000,000 worth of business in 1933 and expected larger operations this year.

The labor situation throughout the mills of Southeastern Cottons, Inc., the chairman said, is good because of the method of handling differences. Under the code the mills are settling troubles, when such develop, locally, and doing it satisfactorily, so that strikes are virtually unknown.

Coffin said that with the Japanese using cotton from India that the United States faces the loss of a would tend to reduce the volume of sales and employment.

On the other hand, the committee recognizes that there are individual cases where adjustments have not been made in keeping with adjustments generally, and where special conditions make wage increases and reduction in maximum hours possible.

"The committee," he recommended in such cases that such changes be made. In the opinion of the committee no attempt should be made to effect blanket increases in wages or reduction in code hours by executive order.

The report outlined a "platform of satisfactory employer-employee relationship," containing these three planks:

"A wage scale which compensates the worker fairly and generously within the ability of the employer to pay."

"Confidence as it is affected by factors other than planks one and two—better homes, better education facilities and all that goes to make up a healthful and happy community life."

Ring of Small Negroes Used To Steal Bottles

VALDOSTA, Ga., April 29.—Jim Mills, a young negro boy under arrest for stealing milk bottles, has given police information of a city-wide ring using small negroes to shoplift from stores, as well as milk bottles.

Dairymen of the city report the loss of as high as 600 milk bottles per week, which led to the capture of Mills, who admitted the theft charged to him. He said a group of older negroes arranged with small boys to "lift" articles, for which they were paid small sums.

greater part of its exports and that probably the combination of British and American manufacturers might be necessary to meet the situation.

Asked what effect the Bankhead cotton control bill will have on the industry, Coffin replied that there were so many differences of opinion that it would be almost impossible to say at the present time. He did say, however, that there was every reason to believe that the reduction would affect the market upward, but it was impossible to say at this date how far upward the price might go.

TECH ATHLETE HURT IN SEVEN-CAR CRASH

Bill McKay, Football and Track Man, Involved in Accident Near Newnan.

NEWNAN, Ga., April 29.—Bill McKay, football and track athlete of Georgia Tech, was in the Newnan hospital today with painful cuts and bruises as the result of a wholesale crash of automobiles on the Roosevelt highway four miles out of Newnan Saturday night.

Seven cars figured in the pile-up and five persons suffered minor injuries.

Hugh Houston, of Madras, near Newnan, was the first to come to grief. His car broke down on the wet and slippery highway. The car driven by Miss Virginia Stevens, daughter of the Coweta county tax collector, and in which her mother, Mrs. Joe Stevens, was riding, crashed into the Houston car which had stopped just over a rise in the road and was thus not visible to approaching vehicles. Mrs. Stevens was bruised and slightly cut. Then the car of Barney Beers, of Newnan, in which McKay and Jimmy Beers, the Fox theater organist, were riding, piled into the two first cars. McKay was hurt and Jimmy Beers was cut slightly.

Following the Beers' car an auto driven by a youth named Jackson, of Newnan, piled into the massed wreckage, injuring the driver and his brother, William C. Jackson, also of Newnan, was the fifth motorist to join the wreck pile. He was uninjured.

Ballard Hudson, cashier of the Palmetto bank, was warned in time to stop short of the pile, but the car of D. M. Wood, of Atlanta, piled into Hudson's auto and pushed it into the other cars.

None of the cars was badly damaged and no serious injuries were received by any of the occupants.

PRIVATE INDUSTRY REEMPLOYS 10,702

Georgia Director Says Business Must Absorb Jobless Now.

MACON, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—

The report that 10,702 Georgians have been established in rejuvenated private industry was brought out in the two-day conference of the National Re-employment Service Managers today by Lincoln McConnell, state director, who said private placements must be the keynote of re-employment efforts in the future.

Before the adjournment today he told the approximately 100 workers he was "deeply gratified that the private placements represented 38 per cent of the total made in the state," and outlined the recent consolidation of 157 county offices into 23 district offices.

"The Georgia plan thus evolved," he said, "has been adopted by the federal department of labor for the entire United States." The re-organization was necessitated by the cessation of CWA activities into which the re-employment service was pouring workers on their rolls.

The new plan he said will be under observation until July 1, 1935, when authorities will decide whether or not to make the service a joint federal and state affair instead of the solely federal program that it is now.

Coming from every section of the state, the managers, assistants and office workers discussed their problems at conferences in the Bibb county courthouse and were entertained by the Macon office of which G. Roy Bethune is manager.

Technical details of the new program were discussed by state re-employment supervisors including W. L. Abbott, O. E. Maple, Lem James, A. F. Scoggin, and Carl Karsten; Harry O. Mitchell, state statistician; and Marion A. O'Connor, state veterans' placement officer.

District managers who spoke were W. D. Doak, of Atlanta; Mr. Bethune, of Macon; Thomas J. Teague, of Augusta, and J. E. Kelly, of Valdosta. Others on the program were Arthur J. Donovan, field representative of the Atlanta office; General Walter A. Harris, Macon attorney; Aaron Bernd, Macon newspaperman, representatives of the Mosteller Brothers, of Atlanta, and W. A. Young, contractors employing large blocks of labor.

"I NEED HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MR. CECIL SMITH, WITH A THRIVING FAMILY TO LOOK OUT FOR"

Robert E. Butterfield, Jr., who has two thriving youngsters, says:

"A father's job gives a fellow plenty of experience with nerve strain, too! Providing for the children keeps you keyed up to concert pitch. Then—coming home from work, with Dick insisting on movies—Bob's eternal tap dancing—that's the zero hour for a father's nerves! Although I smoke all I want, jangled nerves have passed me by. That's because I smoke Camels. Camels have the fine flavor of the choicest, most expensive tobaccos. And I find they never upset my nerves."

Cecil Smith, who rose to the top of the polo world this year with a ten-goal rating, says:

"Polo makes continuous demands on your nervous system. A fraction of a second determines whether or not you can successfully ride your opponent out of a play and a fraction of an inch in your aim may mean a goal—made or missed! Most polo players, myself included, smoke a great deal. And most polo players, myself included again, prefer to smoke Camels. They are milder. I like their flavor and they never upset my nerves."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Nerves, nerves, nerves! You hear them discussed everywhere today. For most of us are more or less the victims of irritated, jumpy nerves.

If troubled that way, check up on your eating, your work, your recreation, your sleep. And to be on the safe side about "nerves," begin to smoke Camels.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

No wonder they are milder, finer in flavor, free from irritation! Make Camels your smoke! You'll be delighted with Camels' flavor... the gentle mood of enjoyment... well-being... and poise which steady smokers find in Camels.

Distinct Savings Now Await Buyer of Roofing, Says Charles N. Walker

ATLANTANS URGED TO AVAIL SELVES OF PRICE SAVINGS

Walker Roofing Company Reports Seven Carloads Moved Here During Last Thirty Days.

Contrary to popular belief, says Charles N. Walker, president of the Walker Roofing Company, 141-43 Houston street, N. E., prices on roofing and allied materials have not yet advanced as have those of other products under the influence of the NRA.

Seldom in history, Mr. Walker asserts, has it been possible to buy roofing materials so advantageously, considering their prices in comparison with those of other human needs.

That Atlanta home and building owners are realizing and availing themselves of this price condition is amply illustrated by Mr. Walker's statement that during the past 30 days seven solid carloads of roofing materials have been unloaded here for sale by the Walker Roofing Company.

"Many people," says Mr. Walker, "are buying at present prices for roof repairs, and thereby saving many dollars. Others should act promptly, for roofing now is selling as low as at any time during the depression, but, coincident with the imminent approval of the roofing code, it is reasonable to expect a substantial advance in prices on roofing and all allied materials."

The Walker Roofing Company, which has been an Atlanta institution for the past 27 years, has long enjoyed the trust and confidence of the buying public because of the high standard of service it maintains and its rigid adherence during that time to the policy of using only the finest materials available.

'Safe Miles' Given by Kelly-Springfields, Holland Tire Company Executive Declares

At the shop of the Holland Tire Company, Kelly-Springfield tire distributors in Atlanta, at 28-30 Ivy street, S. E., a complete equipment is maintained for retreading, vulcanizing and other phases of tire repair and renovation. Here, under the supervision of John H. Holland (shown standing with hand on a stack of new Kelly-Springfields), the motorist may be assured of the utmost in tire service.

The day of mere miles has gone and the advent of "safe miles" is here, declares John H. Holland, of the Holland Tire Company, Atlanta distributors for the justly-popular Kelly-Springfield line of tires.

"Today, as never before," says Mr. Holland, "the motoring public is demanding 'safe miles' when buying tires. The question is no longer one of 'how many miles?' but of 'how many safe miles?' So, when the motorists approach their buying from this angle, and demand the utmost in safety in their tires, it is logical that they should turn to Kelly-Springfields."

Mr. Holland reports a phenomenal increase in the public demand for the ever-popular Kelly-Springfield line, especially for its Fatigue-Proof Registered tire, which gives 100 per cent blow-out protection.

have adequately proven, since their introduction here, the wisdom of their choice.

"Locust quality," says Mr. Walker, "is not an accident. It is the result of high intention, sincere effort and intelligent and skillful execution. It represents the determination to produce a serviceable and beautiful design to be laid over old, wooden shingles or on new roofs."

"The same holds true of the Tru-Lok, also designed especially for re-roofing, which, over a period of many years, has given complete satisfaction to tens of thousands of home owners in every part of the country."

Locust shingles, he states, harmonize with any style of architecture because of their hexagonal (keystone) shape. The locking feature is invisible and holds them securely, insuring tight, rain-proof roofs.

The Tru-Lok, he points out, is made with pure asphalt saturant (the most waterproof material known), extra quality roofing felt base and inspected slate and stone surfacings, which give them an unusually high fire-resistance.

In short, says Mr. Walker, either the Locust or Tru-Lok will provide the answer to the home roofing problem and prove a good investment from every standpoint.

The Walker Roofing Company's experts will be glad, upon call, to provide estimates on any roofing job, large or small.

For those not equipped with Kelly-Springfields, or with tires which, after long service, have outlived their useful lives, the Holland Tire Company shop at 28-30 Ivy street, S. E., maintains every facility for changing and repairing tires. Located at this place for the last eight years, the company has won and retained countless friends among automobile owners through its unexcelled service.

Special attention also is called to the Holland Tire Company's retreading department, where old, smooth-worn automobile tires can be retreaded and given a non-skid tread of live rubber which, in many instances, will give mileage equalling or exceeding that of a new tire. Motorists are invited to investigate and to avail themselves of this service, which may be had at very low cost.

The company maintains one of the most complete vulcanizing and repair departments in the city, in charge of men of long service and experience in this work. It is equipped to handle repairs on any size of pneumatic tire.

Calling attention again to the Kelly-Springfield Fatigue-Proof Registered tire, Mr. Holland pictures it as the crowning achievement of the tire-making industry. The Fatigue-Proof Registered tire, he asserts, includes not merely one or two good features, but every modern feature—at no extra cost.

Atlanta Cabinet Shop Constructs Durable Screens for City's Homes

Bent on stemming the summer onslaught of mosquitoes, flies and myriad other insects, Atlanta home owners are giving early thought to the replacement of worn and broken window, door and porch screens, according to J. G. Street, president of the Atlanta Cabinet Shop, located at 591 Edgewood avenue, S. E.

After the rigors of winter and the damp days of spring, says Mr. Street, the screens on countless Atlanta homes are found to be rusted, worn and broken beyond reasonable hope of repair, and owners are turning to the Atlanta Cabinet Shop's special morticed and tenoned screens as the answer to their needs.

Mr. Street reports a steadily increasing business at the Atlanta Cabinet Shop, not only in screen replacement, but in the construction and installation of office partitions, counters, cabinets and other such work. This, he points out, is a reliable barometer of the firm upward trend in business.

In many instances the reopening of branch offices and the establishment of others here.

Atlanta home owners contemplating modernization of their homes, in answer to President Roosevelt's recent appeal, and through the assistance of the home owners' loan plan, are invited to confer with J. G. Street, salesman, or any other of the Atlanta Cabinet Shop's staff of cabinet work of any kind.

Good weather or bad, Mr. Street points out, a home should be protected with solidly constructed screens, which serve as a barrier against inclement weather and allow the free passage of what cooling breezes the summer months offer.

Window, door or porch screens are made to order at the Atlanta Cabinet Shop, and may be obtained in any size, of any desired type, and in a choice of three colors—black enamel, galvanized or copper—with little variance in price.

Expertly constructed, they are fashioned with the finest materials and without the use of the unsatisfactory corrugated nails so frequently employed in inferior screens. Atlanta Cabinet Shop screens are made for strength, soundness and durability.

STEEL AND AUTOS LEAD PAST WEEK IN TRADE'S GAINS

Textiles, Other Consumers Goods Lines Abandon Van; Industrial Barometer Rises.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—

Leadership in business recovery was shifted to the durable goods lines particularly steel and automobiles. This indicates a possible reversal of the tendency earlier in the recovery, when textiles and other consumers goods lines were at the forefront of the advance, and the heavier lines were inclined to lag.

Of the durable goods lines, construction is still failing to contribute its share, although the volume is substantially above that of a year ago, when building activity was all but paralyzed. The proposed administration drive to accomplish expenditure of some $1,500,000,000 on home renovation is being awaited with keen interest and high hopes.

Some of the principal weekly industrial barometers advanced to new highs for the year last week, evidently reflecting chiefly the steel and automotive activity, although several miscellaneous manufactures have continued to gain. Steel production is estimated by the publication Steel at 57 per cent of capacity, a further boost of 2 percentage points, making a gain of 9 percentage points in three weeks. This has lifted the rate approximately to the peak of last July.

The weekly reports of the movement of revenue freight and of electric power production also have again shown contrasessional gains. Moody's seasonally adjusted index figures for steel, freight and electric power rose to 77.1, a new 1934 peak, compared with 75.0 a week previously, 56.9 a year ago, and 48.5 in 1929. The index for July, which was the apex of last year's abnormal summer flurry.

Textiles, however, are experiencing a rather decided seasonal lull. Rayon prices were reduced during the week, and the silk code authority is considering petitioning for a shutdown of a week to reduce "the gigantic amount of manufactured silk which is now glutting the market." Wool business was dull, with mills receiving little new business. A fair volume of cotton is being sold, but at substantial discounts. New York Cotton Exchange service said sales of cloth by mills in the latest week were believed to have fallen substantially below production.

Retail trade reports remained cheerful. Despite none too favorable weather, Dunn & Bradstreet said reports indicated gains in dollar volume of 8 per cent over the previous week, and 15 to 53 per cent over the like week of last year. Dollar volume comparisons with a year ago are, of course, distorted by seasonal variations. In view of unseasonably cool weather, however, merchants expect the spring trading season will be prolonged well into summer.

Dunn & Bradstreet pointed to a greater spirit of business aggressiveness indicated by substantial increases in advertising and sales. The resumption of the policy of going after business is one of the most significant of the constructive factors making for further expansion.

While merchandising was reported a little quieter, although there was a fair volume of fill-in orders. Hardware, leather goods, summer furniture, electrical supplies and groceries were reported as making the factory corrugated nails so frequently employed in inferior screens. Atlanta Cabinet Shop screens are made for strength, soundness and durability.

Compact Tractor Displayed By International Harvester

Users of tractors for any type of work requiring a machine that is compact, yet powerful and economical, are urged to visit the Atlanta branch of the International Harvester Company of America, 580 Whitehall street, S. W., where the above new model—the McCormick-Deering 1-12—is on display. This tractor, says Mercer Lee, manager of the Atlanta branch, is especially adapted for jobs requiring speed combined with ability to get in and out of close places. It has a turning radius of only 103 inches.

The new McCormick-Deering 1-12, valve-in-head International-built engine are replaceable cylinders, down-draft carburetion, induction type magnet, oil line cleaner, and an oil filter with a metal element which may be easily cleaned. Efficient operation is facilitated, says Mr. Lee, by the use of 17 ball bearing and six tapered roller bearings. Ease in steering, he adds, is made possible by mounting the steering worm on roller bearings.

Tractor users throughout the southeast are invited to visit the International Harvester branch here and to inspect this new model, whose manifold new features promise to make it one of the most popular ever produced.

The rear axle, Mr. Lee points out, is designed for uniform stress to withstand loads all the way across. It is semi-floating, mounted on four ball bearings; oil seals give protection against grit and dirt.

Muffler, pintle-hook type spring-cushioned drawbar, and comfortable spring seat are regular equipment. In addition, accessible, machined surfaces are provided for the mounting of various types of industrial equipment to be operated by the 1-12. The frame is of two-piece bolted construction, and transmission, countershaft and differential, rear axle and final drive gears are enclosed.

Outstanding features of the McCormick-Deering 1-12 are its compact size, says Mr. Lee, this new tractor "packs a lot of power" (maximum engine power 21 h.p.) and will provide an appeal all its own on all sorts of industrial, commercial, construction and municipal jobs where speed and ability to get in and out of close spaces are required.

The McCormick-Deering 1-12, Mr. Lee asserts, is especially well adapted for use in factories and railroad terminals and on docks, and for operating a wide variety of lighter industrial equipment.

The new model is 96 inches long overall, 50 inches wide over-all, and 52 inches high over the steering wheel. It has a turning radius of only 103 inches. Another unusual feature is its speed range from a low of 2 1/2 miles an hour up to a high of 10 1/4 miles an hour, with foot accelerator and hand control. It is equipped with brakes of the internal-expanding type, operated by foot pedal.

Automobile production jumped 7,672 units to 99,336, a new high for the recovery, as estimated by Cram for the past week. The April total is placed at close to 400,000 units, the largest for any month since May of 1930. Some slackening in the rate of gains in retail sales was indicated, especially due to price increases and unseasonable weather. This was regarded as temporary; the seasonally peak of selling is not anticipated for some weeks yet.

Although the week's business news showed a little more unevenness than recently, industrial expansion has continued further into spring than usual and in many lines, the peak is said to be not yet in sight. A reaction in the wheat and cotton markets has prompted renewed talk of some further government stimulus to business to keep up volumes through the summer, but this may not be necessary. The only plan under active discussion in Washington, apparently, is the $1,500,000,000 home renovation campaign.

To "restore color" that woman raves. (Poised by Elizabeth Allan.) It was a hard lesson.

The dye craze is one of the most absurd in which women ever became interested. If they fool themselves with their dyed hair, certainly they don't fool any one else. And the hardest looking women in the world are those with dyed hair when they are old enough to have gray hair. Besides they would look very handsome if they did have it. Their skin turns the soft color that goes with gray, and then—whooops, my dear!—they decide to be blonds or black-haired women. Trying then to get back to normal after a dye dip is about the saddest experience a woman can have.

Keep your hair clean. Wash it with a pure soap. Don't sit too long under those hot air driers if there is any way to avoid it. Take more time and dry your hair partially by hand and partially under the dryer. That will help.

There is a curling fluid I'll tell you about, that is not thick or sticky, but is the consistency of water. It also perfumes the hair delicately and delightfully.

Try to learn to set your hair with combs, and if you put a net over the combs and curl the ends with wire hair pins, the hair will dry more evenly and be going about your household tasks. Or do it at night before going to bed and leave them in over night if you can sleep with them in place. You will be surprised at your appearance in the morning.

Try this new wonderful Face Powder MELLO-GLO. 50c and $1.

By MIGNON.

It seems incredible that women will believe that by a few motions and with the aid of a liquid they can restore gray hair to the original color that it had in youth. The Lord in his mercy is the only one who can do that and, frankly, it is not being done. If you believe in hair dye go ahead and let them "restore" your hair to its original color, but I'm afraid you will have to believe in fairies, too, and somehow, at my age, I can't.

A pretty young woman who, when I saw her last, was a blond, came to visit me. It had been several years since I had seen her, and her hair had started to get gray. She came in, received a warm welcome, and took off her hat. I never had a greater shock. She was close to me and I had always credited her with great good sense. She had it, too. But some one had told her this gray story about not having to "endure" gray hair, and she had believed it. Write plain name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Parents, Teachers Plan Observance Of Health Day

Mrs. Otis Rae, chairman of summer round-up for the Atlanta Council of Parents and Teachers, announced that the president of the United States has issued a proclamation designating Tuesday, May 1, as Child Health Day. Mrs. Rae urges the observance of this day in the following statement:

"One of the features of the celebration in Atlanta will be the launching of the ninth annual summer round-up, a health activity of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association and the health and education departments of the city."

"Summer round-up programs will be conducted at each of Atlanta's 43 elementary schools May 1, 2, 3 and 4, with a specific day and hour for each school. Parents are advised to call the principals of schools nearest their homes for scheduled time."

"The purpose of the project is to assemble children who will enter school for the first time this fall for registration and physical examination for those whose parents so desire."

"The physical examination in the spring allows ample time for the correction of remedial defects and protection against smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid, making the child as physically fit as possible to embark on the greatest adventure of his life—his education."

"Last year, of 1,257 Atlanta children of pre-school age examined in the summer round-up, 93.65 per cent were found defective. The check up of physical defects in the fall showed only 38 per cent corrected, indicating the necessity of a more concentrated effort on the part of parents for the follow-up part of the program."

Lillian Mae Patterns.

Have you ever worn a cowl neckline? It really is astonishingly becoming. You know who originated the first one—do you not? Madame Vionnet the great French dressmaker—and it is one of the best things that wonderful woman ever sponsored. It is often extremely simple—just look at the sketch—but isn't it chic? And see the stunning way the yoke buttons down the back! Otherwise the dress is quite plain—but so well cut its plainness seems quite Parisian. A blue and white print with white yoke would be lovely—or it may be made entirely of one color.

Pattern 1851 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3-1/4 yards 39-inch fabric and 1-2 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

NANCY PAGE

Winter Togs and Toys Are Put Away for Summer
By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Nancy was getting ready for summer. This meant putting away all the woollens, the blankets, the heavy suits, skates, sleds, woolen mittens, wind breaker coats and furs.

She had a regular procedure. Furs and coats with much fur on them went into cold storage. She realized that warm weather dried out the natural oils in furs and made the underlying skin brittle and easily cracked. Skates and sled runners were greased with some lubricant that had no salt in it. This thin film of oil kept the metal from rusting. Woolen gloves were washed and dried in the sunshine. Nancy was careful to wash and raise the woollens in lukewarm water. Only a mild soap was used in laundering them.

Blankets were either washed at home on a sunshiny windy day or sent to the commercial laundry.

Woolen suits and clothes were sent to the cleaners. As soon as they or anything woolen, was sent home Nancy wrapped them in clean absorbent paper. Or she put them into clean garment bags that were of tough paper which neither admitted light nor creeping, crawling, flying creatures. All boxes and bags and packages were labeled. Clean clothes wrapped in tight packages will not be touched by moths. There is no chance of a moth finding entrance in the first place. And there is no greasy spot to offer food.

Putting spotted or dirty garments away in cedar chests will not protect them. Neither will spraying with moth preventives. The garment must be clean and it must be so well wrapped or enclosed that flying moths cannot light on the garment long enough to lay eggs which later hatch into grubby worms that eat their way through wool.

Crackers Win First, 9-2, Lose Second, 5-0, at New Orleans

CUBS, GIANTS ARE DEFEATED; YANKEES WIN

Senators Triumph, Tigers Lose; Ruth, Ott, Foxx Hit Homers.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(UP)—Races for the National League lead tightened today when the two top clubs, Cubs and Giants, lost, while the third and fourth-place teams, Braves and Pirates, won.

Chicago lost its second game in 11 starts when beaten, 9 to 4, by the Cardinals. The Cards rose into a sixth-place tie with Cincinnati. Chicago's largest crowd of the season, 27,000, saw the Cards collect 12 hits off Malone and Lee, including Jim Collins' homer, three runs, a double and a single, and a walk.

In Pittsburgh's first Sunday major league game, 20,000 saw the Pirates beat Cincinnati, 9 to 5. Gus Suhr's homer, triple and single, and the Pirates' 12-hit onslaught on Shantz, Sylvester Johnson and Dazy Vance, Paul Waner also hit for the circuit. The Pirates allowed the Reds nine scattered hits, including homers by Shiver and Johnson.

Brooklyn's second Sunday game, six runs in the second, but came from behind with clusters of four tallies in the fifth and four in the eighth to nose out the Dodgers, 8 to 7. Wildness by four Philly hurlers, who allowed 12 bases on balls, contributed to the Dodgers' triumph before 10,000 fans who turned out to witness the first Sunday National League game ever permitted in Philadelphia. Philadelphia outlived the Dodgers, 14 to 8, as the Nick, Carr, Ray Lucas, Page and Leonard paraded to the mound for Brooklyn. Moore, Davis, Hansen and Pearce worked for the Phils.

TIGERS PRESSED. In the American League, Cleveland and New York pressed on the heels of the leading Detroit Tigers, who headed to the Indians, 7 to 1. More than 30,000 Detroit fans saw the Indians pound Marberry and Auker for 11 safeties, some of which were bunched for three runs in the fifth and four in the eighth. Meanwhile, Hildebrand and Lloyd Brown limited the Tigers to six hits. Earl Averill and Bill Knickerbocker pitched the Indians' attack with three hits in four trips each.

Third-place New York edged Boston, 3 to 2, before 50,000 fans in Yankee stadium. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig joined forces to win. Ruth made his third homer of the year in the eighth, and Gehrig's single drove in the winning run in the ninth. The Yankees found Bob Weiland for eight hits, while Lefty Gomez limited the Sox to six. Myril Hoag's error in the fourth allowed a run. Boston runs, depriving Lefty of a shutout. Washington replaced the Red Sox in fourth position by shading the Athletics, 7 to 6. Manager Joe Mauer won his own fourth game, as Senators with a ninth-inning double that scored two runs. Jimmy Foxx drove in four Philadelphia runs with a homer, double and single. The Senators collected 10 hits off Marcum, Matuzak and Dietrich, while Crowder, Burke, Prim, Russell and Thomas yielded seven to the A's.

St. Louis wrestled seventh place from the White Sox by trouncing them, 6 to 2, behind Jim Weaver's fourth-hit pitching. The Braves' outfield tie, Lyons and Stine for 10 hits, some of which were clustered for four runs in the third. Al Simmons made a Chicago homer in the eighth.

Title Bouts Feature Boxing

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Title defenses by Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, and Vince Dundee, of Newark, and a further testing of the heavyweight championship aspirations of young Walter Neusel, of Germany, feature the national boxing schedule this week.

Miller, recognized as 126-pound king by the National Boxing Association, defends his crown against Paul Dasso, of Chicago, in a 15-round headline bout of Louisville's annual Derby-day boxing show Friday night.

Dundee, middleweight champion, stakes his title in a 15-rounder against Al Diamond, of Paterson, N. J., in Diamond's home town Thursday night.

Neusel, a durable, aggressive heavyweight, tackles Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's master fencer, in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden here Friday night. If he wins, Neusel may get a "shot" at the winner of the forthcoming title match between Champion Primo Camera and Max Baer.

Machado's Face Lighted Up When Fishing Was Discussed

It was just last summer that I was sitting very easily on a stone bench just inside the palace walls of the president's home in Havana, Cuba. It was a very hot day and there was a tenseness all over the town which intruded itself into the little courtyard where the brown machine guns sat. And where the swaggering insolent soldiers went about with their guns.

And finally a guard came and we went in the door where it was hot and dim. There were not many lights and there were hangings on all the windows. Because if they were not there someone might take a pot shot at the man we were going to see, he being Gerardo Machado, the president of Cuba.

After numerous doors and elevators we came at last to the room where he was. And we sat there in the stuffy room with the rich hangings and paintings and rugs ankle deep like blue grass.

We talked for awhile about politics of his nation and what a terrible situation things were in general. But he was handing out just what the ordinary politician hands out—which is nothing but platitudes and trite, empty sayings about the dear people and that sort of thing.

But after a while I mentioned fishing. And then it was that the man's weary, restless and afraid face lighted up. He became animated and he measured them with his hands, even as you and I. Just the other night he had caught 60 pounds of mackerel and he measured them off—so long. He talked of the sea and his boats.

But then one of the soldiers trailed in with his gun and said something and the interview was over. The mask came back on his face and he went out. In the hall I had a glimpse of the American ambassador and other officials, all very serious.

As I said, this was just last summer. And now I read in the papers where Gerardo Machado is being hunted just like John Dillinger. He is wanted for murder in Cuba.

There is no story in this except that when I read about him being the object of a manhunt in New York, I thought about him sitting there lifting his hands to measure off the length of the fish he had caught. His face was all lighted up as he talked.

And now they want him for murder and he is hiding from the officers in an alien country. It probably isn't important to anyone but him. There seemed to be a story in all this when I started but it seems to have run out. I couldn't forget about him measuring off his fish. Soooooo Big! And grinning.

BETS ON THE DERBY

They will spring a barrier at Churchill Downs late next Saturday afternoon and some 16 or 20 horses will get away with a leap on the mile and a quarter running of the Kentucky Derby.

It would be interesting to know just how much money will be riding on that race. There will be bets in all the cities of this country. And in many cities of other countries.

There will be between $800,000 and $1,000,000 in cash money handed through the ticket windows at Churchill Downs. And that is quite a lot of funds.

But there will be bets made in the handbooks uptown in Louisville. And in every city of any size there will be bets made. Atlanta bookmakers will have a handle of about $100,000, maybe more, on the day of the race. New York will bet a million on the race. Maybe more. So will Chicago.

It is pretty safe to say that about $7,000,000 will change hands on the running of that race alone. It lasts just a little more than two minutes.

And that night, downtown in Louisville as the parties get under way, the big question will be, "Did you have a ticket on the winner?" There will be a lot of second-guesses and a lot of guys claiming they had tickets who didn't. It's a sort of distinction to have bet on the winner.

THE BASEBALL JOCKEYS.

Spencer Abbott, the grizzled Cracker manager, announced before the club left Saturday for New Orleans that he hoped Andy Messenger, one-time Cracker, would be the Pelican pitching choice.

It seems that Spencer Abbott can be a good baseball jockey when he wishes to. And also that he had something on Andy Messenger which he figured would make Andy's goat come over to the Cracker bench.

It evidently worked out as Andy Messenger was knocked out of there and the Crackers won the first game by a wide margin.

The baseball jockeys have pulled some funny ones in their day. Once there was a pitcher in the National League who played the trombone in secret. That is to say he played it during the winter. In his home town. He was very sensitive about it.

John McGraw heard about it. The pitcher was tough to beat. But on the day he pitched against the Giants McGraw had all the Giants on the bench going through the pantomime of playing a trombone. McGraw coached at third and did the same thing. The pitcher got out of there. He was wild with rage and the Giants got to him and won.

There used to be a pitcher in the Southern league who had once been arrested for stealing chickens. Every time he came to Nashville to pitch the Nashville manager of this particular year of which I speak, would root him. He would flap his arms and cackle like a hen. Pretty soon the bleachers found out the story. And so every time the pitcher appeared on the field the bleacher fans would start in to cackle and crow. It sounded like a barnyard. And pretty soon the pitcher was never used in Nashville.

Give a baseball jockey something to work on and he can do a lot of damage.

PETE SAUER FANS.

Last week I had the pleasure and privilege of speaking to "The Thirty Club," College Park's progressive civic organization. They demanded some information about wrestling. When it was all done this reporter was surrounded by a group of indignant wrestling fans. It seems that Pete Sauer had, quite inadvertently, been overlooked.

The big Californian is one of the most popular grapplers in the game. He returns here Wednesday night in a hair-raising match with George Zaharias. Sauer, if he were to take his work seriously, would have been champion. But he has always liked to have a little fun with his work. As a showman he hasn't a superior.

CHICAGO CUBS DOMINATE PLAY IN MAJOR SHOW

Fine Pitching, Heavy Hitting Gives Bruins All But One Game.

By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—The mighty Chicago Cubs again were almost the whole baseball show as they swept through the second week of the major league campaign with the loss of only one game, their first of the season.

Clouting the ball at a terrific clip behind the fine pitching of their "Big Four" Warneke, Bush, Malone and Root, the Cubs made it seven in a row before they succumbed to Cincinnati Thursday, then they came right back to add another pair of triumphs before the week ended with Saturday's games.

In addition to winning five out of six games during the week, the best record in either major league, they piled out 67 hits and made them good for 38 runs, topping all rivals by big margins. Their pitchers allowed just 13 tallies, a fraction over two to the game, for one of the week's best records and in the field they were charged with only four errors, again putting the Cubs up among the best.

MORE SLUGGING. The second-best in slugging also appeared in the National league, which continued to run far above the American in the hitting and scoring figures. The Phillies tallied 25 times and the Braves and Reds each collected 48 hits. Only in the home run department did the Cubs fall to hold first place. New York's Giants, garnering four in one game, totaled seven for the week to Chicago's five.

In the American league the high scoring mark was 21 runs, made by Washington's Senators, who won three out of four games to share the weekly top with the pace-setting Detroit Tigers, and by the Cleveland Indians. Defensively, Cleveland played its three games with only one error and the Tigers and Yankees' pitchers shaded the Cubs by granting just two runs per game, eight to Detroit's opponents and 10 to New York's.

BIG SURPRISE. The week's big surprise was in the continued futility of the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost four out of five games to slide into a tie with the Phillies for last place. They tallied only 19 runs on 40 hits and allowed their opponents 31 runs.

The week's major league record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs follows:

In the Derby It's Sir Thomas to You!

DERBY RECORD IS THREATENED

By C. Robert Kay.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—(AP) If the Churchill Downs track is fast next Saturday, the Kentucky Derby record of 2:01 4-5 set by Twenty Grand will be seriously threatened, if not broken.

For Mrs. I. D. Sloan's Cavalcade has won both his pre-Derby races in record time, and if he is in top condition on Derby Day, the horses in the field will be forced to run their fastest, with a new track record a possibility whether Cavalcade wins or loses.

The hosts of backers of Charles T. Flaherty's Mata Hari, an extraordinary filly, contend she is just as fleet and has just as much stamina as Cavalcade, and the consensus of opinion is that the Derby finish will be between these two horses.

Tech and Oglethorpe Battle for Southern Lead

SAM STRIBLING AND COPELAND RIVAL PITCHERS

Second Game of City Title Series Will Begin at 3 O'Clock.

By Jack Troy.

It's like finding a million-dollar bargain in a five-and-ten-cent store. Tech and Oglethorpe, setting the city championship stage all over again in a different location, will meet this afternoon at Fonce de Leon park at 3 o'clock. And the price of admission is only 25 cents. Any seat in the grandstand is available at this attractive sum.

The same price will be in effect for Tuesday's game and also the postponed game which probably will be played Wednesday.

If only Lefty Dixon, game as a fighting bantam, were not on crutches today. The breaks are sometimes cruel. Dixon has been on crutches since the Tech game last week. And he can't go out and meet the steady Sam Stribling. Tech's ace today.

The Cracker are away and the collegians will play in the old familiar park. Today's and tomorrow's games will begin at 3 o'clock.

STRIBLING TO PITCH. Tech will depend on Alternate-Captain Sam Stribling, who won the first game of the series last week when teammates rallied around him and routed the ninth. Tech had trailed all the way, but in a wild-eyed finish pushed over a pair of tallies to win, 3 to 2. Rain postponed the second game, which also will be played this week.

Stribling has had unusual success this year. He has won every game he has pitched except one. He likewise has started every first game except the recent Auburn game.

Ed Copeland, the Petrel choice to lead, stepped in and stopped Georgia Saturday at Athens when Lawrence Wade showed signs of weakening in the ninth. He had beaten Georgia the day before. He is a fine college pitcher. And today's game is likely to be last Monday's all over again.

Lefty Dixon will not have a chance to pitch in either game. He showed the stuff heroes are made of when he got up after painfully injuring an ankle in the fifth inning against Tech and finished the game. He has been on crutches since.

WADE'S CHANCE. And no Lawrence Wade will get his chance against Tech in Tuesday's game. There is a great story connected with Wade.

The Georgia game was his first college game as a pitcher. He always had been a catcher. But last fall he twisted a knee early in the season and was out of most of the games. He couldn't catch this year because the backstop position requires.

And no Anderson, a great Anderson he wanted to pitch. He worked out doors and indoors preparing himself. He took advantage of every opportunity.

His big chance came against Georgia. What was to be his first college game as a pitcher. The field was muddy and the ball was certain to be wet. Anderson, a great Anderson he wanted to pitch. He worked out doors and indoors preparing himself. He took advantage of every opportunity.

He was undecided. And then he decided to cast his lot with Wade. Clark has had trouble with his arm since his freshman year.

RARE COURAGE. Wade took a bag of resin out to the mound and for eight innings pitched beautifully. He showed the rare courage he displayed in football as he pulled out of both time and pain. He couple of men got on in the ninth and Coach Anderson sent Copeland in to finish the game.

But Wade won with his first college game. And with the victory he had won the respect and admiration of the veteran coach Frank Anderson, who thinks Wade is one of the finest competitive athletes he has ever coached.

Wade played for Fairfax in the fast Chattanooga Valley league last summer. He held down an outfield position. He has been playing right field for Oglethorpe and will be out there batting today.

THE LINEUPS. Coach Bobby Dodd will start the usual line today. It will include Hoot Gibson, first base; Cliff Hardin, second base; Sun Dial Martin, shortstop; McConney, third base; Johnny Ferguson, left field; Skipper Roberts, center field; and Captain Tommy Spradling, right field. Pug Boyd will catch.

Oglethorpe's lineup will include Hoot Gibson, first base; Eddie Anderson, second base; McGinty, shortstop; Buster Fischer, third base; Sullivan, left field; Belton Clark, center field; and Lawrence Wade, right field. Happy Vance will catch.

The infielders are two of the finest in Dixie. Each has made relatively few mistakes this season. The outfielders are strong. The pitching is reliable. The catchers are capable.

Lefty Dixon is on crutches but the series is set all over again in a different setting. There is a thrill packed into every minute of the city championship battles.

And 25 cents will admit spectators to any seat in the stands. It's like finding a million-dollar bargain in a five-and-ten-cent store.

HIGH FLYER. ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., April 29.—(UP)—Take-offs are simpler than putting and landing easier than shooting from a bunker. Helen Hicks, gold medalist at the Olympic games, said yesterday that the 23-year-old star's only difficulty "was getting into my slipper flying suit."

West End Holds Event This Week

It doesn't often happen that the rain falls in such quantities as to scare the show shooters away. But the west end of the city was under a spell of rain yesterday and the West End Gun Club was forced to postpone its first annual spring loving cup shoot until next Sunday.

Secretary C. L. Davis announced that the trophies will be on display all week in the show room at the West End Gun Club where Al (Al) Abbott & Co. are working.

YOUTHFUL STRONGER. Zaharias is younger and stronger. But he does not possess quite the skill which Sauer has. The two met here a year ago and Sauer won by losing the first fall. The match is one which should find the ball park bulging at the seams. Especially in view of the fact that the man has predicted warm weather for the evening.

In the semi-weekly match between Kirilenko and Sauer, the latter was the better. A genuine cowboy, he has been a money winner in several rounds seasons. He is from Kansas and weighs 225 pounds. He began his professional career with 72 consecutive victories in which he did not lose a fall. His bulldozing of the annual rodeo shows. Consistently boxing stuff of the ring does not worry him.

POPULAR. Kirilenko has appeared here. He is quite popular, having a good record of knockouts. He is a strong and his style is attractive. Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters. All seats at the ball park are good and the view is perfect no matter where the spectators may be seated.

THE WILD BIRD

BY OWEN JOHNSON

INSTALLMENT XX.

"Gregory is not here. And you mustn't excite yourself."

"Is that the truth? Is it? I feel him here always, waiting, meeting me, I feel you go from me to him, I feel—"

"Father, stop!" She laid her hand peremptorily on his. "You must stop believing such things. You must believe what I tell you. No one is here but me, and I am here with just one thought, stay with you until you are well again."

"Until?" He stared at her in a sudden anger, slipping down into the bed in a sudden weakness. "Maybe I don't want to live. Maybe there's nothing to live for."

"If you act like this," she said hurriedly, "I shan't be allowed to come in the room."

From his bed he stared up at her. "No, no—don't leave me!"

Trembling from head to foot, she started toward the door.

"Barbara!"

She came back and sat stiffly, while his hand twined about her rigid fingers.

"Don't leave me! Never leave me!" With the return of his obsession the fever started up again. Sometimes he went into a delirium. Often she felt he might die, that he might die with her his impetuous against Rance.

A passion of self-immolation possessed him. Yes, there was one way to save her! If he died she would never go to him! Never! That at least would be unthinkable!

Barbara came from these terrible scenes worn in body and crushed in spirit. Day by day she felt her will to resist weakening before the conviction that her father would never yield short of a complete surrender.

The doctors warned her of the danger of another stroke. A sudden violent access of rage and the end would be swift. In her despair she sent for Rance.

To Rance, waiting now on the outside, the days were one long nightmare. How long would Barbara hold out? How long could flesh and blood stand the strain of these horrible tests? At night when he waited for her by the bridge, he never heard her faltering steps on the path without a terror of what her words might bring.

At times when the waiting was protracted he would go up to the path until through the heavy black shadows of the evergreen he could see the lighted windows of the gaunt house, where his enemy, strong in his weakness, cunning and remorseless, was fighting to take her from him.

With his quick imagination he visualized all that Barbara, to spare him, tried to withhold from him. How could she with her gentle nature, her acute sensibilities, contend against that madman! Good God, how far would he go? Was he actually going to die?

Could Barbara let him die? Her father? She was on the verge of a breakdown now—how much longer could she hold out? It was inhuman.

Aunt Het

"Well, he's not going to crush you," he burst out. "He's not going to crush you down he'll know he's beaten!"

"He isn't like any one you've ever known."

"That's true," he said grimly. "He's not human, he's not sane. He's stone and iron. He's absolutely unscrupulous, without the slightest pity in him. He's selfish, brutal—"

"And he is my father," she said, dropping her hands in despair.

"Oh, no, I don't blame you. It's all true," she lay inertly, her head on his shoulder. "I'm predestined."

"You mustn't get such ideas in your head."

"There's something wrong with me," she said in a dull voice. "My mother and her mother before her. There's something I've never been told, but I know. He hated my mother—never speaks of her. He crushed her—" to subject her to such torture, inhuman to ask such a sacrifice!

He fought now with every weapon he could command, seeking to divine each move, suggesting to her every answer. When she arrived tottering and shivering into his arms, he would talk to her for long hours, bringing back her calm, reassuring her, strengthening her courage, repeating that she must close her ears to the ravings of an ill man, a man in a delirium, under the influence of opiates. And gradually night after night, he would win her back to a courage, which he himself was far from feeling.

"What a devil he is!" He found some relief in cursing his own heart's content. "But supposing he should die? What would she do then?"

He wondered a great deal, plunged in black thoughts. The hopeless thing was that he was fighting something he could not contend with. He was a spectator, powerless to intervene, while day after day in the unhealthy atmosphere of the sick room Barbara alone would have to undergo every emotional torment that the man's desperate, unscrupulous imagination could devise to break down her resistance, poison her mind, reduce her to that weakened state of hysteria where she would bend to his will. The more desperate the situation, the more incredible it seemed. He was caught in another world, in another age. An age he believed had ceased to exist. Such things did not happen nowadays! The old man must be shamming.

Then Barbara would be back, running toward him. He would sweep her into his arms, weak and shivering, nervous shudders, he hand cold in his grasp.

It's hopeless. There's no way out. He'll kill himself, kill himself deliberately! But he'll never let me have you!"

"Nonsense."

"You don't know him."

"I do know him. He's not going to die and he's not going to frighten you out of your right to live. But every time he sees you he'll begin again. You ought to go away."

She shook her head.

"Don't ask that."

"It's the only sensible thing to do. The moment he knows he can't wear you down he'll know he's beaten!"

"He isn't like any one you've ever known."

"That's true," he said grimly. "He's not human, he's not sane. He's stone and iron. He's absolutely unscrupulous, without the slightest pity in him. He's selfish, brutal—" strength held out, as long as she dared. But she fought without hope, knowing that it was a losing fight, knowing there was no yielding to be expected from the granite obsession of her father.

"Oh, no, I don't blame you. It's all true," she lay inertly, her head on his shoulder. "I'm predestined."

The climax came in the late afternoon of the second month, when she entered his room to replace the nurse. For the last weeks he had been growing steadily more intractable, again haunted by the illusion that Gregory was in the house behind the door, in the room, spying on him.

The single candle on the bed table drew fantastic shadows against the wall as she came in stealthily and slipped to her place. He turned instantly and stared at her.

"Why do you come stealing in like this?" he said thickly.

"I am always near when you want me."

"No. You are waiting—just waiting—as he is waiting."

"Father, please! please! I can't stand it!"

"Why? What for? Who wants me to live?"

"I want you to live."

"He began to laugh."

"That's good. She wants me to live!" Suddenly he turned and caught her hand in a convulsive grip, raising himself on his pillow. "She wants me to live and she won't let me the one thing to make me live. His excitement rose. "Then it's ended? Yes? Tell me! Swear it!"

"I will never give up Gregory, never!" she cried faintly, in a last desperation.

He thrust her hand away from him. "Marry him then when I am dead!"

"No," she said trembling. "You are not going to die. You will get well the moment you want to."

"Ah, now I know!" he cried, sitting up in bed and clutching her wrist. "That's what he told you to say! He's there, everywhere, hoping I am going to die—waiting—and you, too—you are waiting—"

Barbara tried to withdraw her hand from his grasp, but as he clung to her she began to tremble, overcome by the wildness in his eyes.

"Then you want me to die! You both want me to die!" he cried, infuriated by her resistance. "You want me to die so that you can go to him."

"Father!"

"Well, then, yes. I'm going to die, going to die to save you, do you hear! Yes, to save you! For when I'm dead, when he's killed me you can't—no, no, never, not with my curse upon you!"

Barbara wrenched her hand away with a shriek. The nurse running in found her in hysterics and Brawns in a blazing eyes, gibbering, halt out of bed.

Barbara rushed down the stairs and out of the house. She stumbled and caught at the trunk of the great elm, leaning against it as she gazed in horror up at the lighted window. The shadow of the nurse passed and re-passed. For a moment of abject weakness she stood trembling, with the memory of her father's terrible words racking her brain. The window was open and she heard his voice shrill and inarticulate mingled with the sharp, calm commands of the nurse. Then she turned and fled blindly. When she recovered herself she was in the garden by the pool. She crouched down beside it, sunk her arms into the heaving cold of the waters and bathed her hot face.

"I can't fight any more," she said once, looking up, trembling all over, prey to sudden recurring counter actions. She continued to bathe her forehead, with numb mechanical motions, until she could regain the calm necessary to go and see Gregory. The moon was full and bright above her. The night still, without a flutter in the trees. She stretched out on her back, her hands beneath her head and lay gazing up into the luminous eyes of the night, until a certain unearthly detachment came to heal the disorder of her senses. She remained thus an hour perhaps and then rising crossed the garden and went by the river path to meet her lover.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FLYING ADVENTURES.

1—Montgolfier Goes Up.

The balloon may be said to have grown out of a trick with paper bags. Early tests by the inventors were made with bags which they filled with hot air. Joseph and Jacques Montgolfier filled the bags with hot air over an open fire, set them alight and watched them rise to the ceiling of the room in which they were "playing."

A hand played and cannon boomed as the balloon went upward. From the great crowd which had gathered there were cheers; but some among them were afraid that the men would not return alive.

The balloon rose about 3,000 feet; and those on the ground who had spyglasses were able to see that the bold adventurers were waving their hands as though to say "We are all right up here so high above the world! Don't worry about us!"

There was a new thunder of applause when suddenly the watchers gasped. The balloon had been torn! Hot air was escaping, and the balloon was falling!

Down, down it came, with its human cargo! Groans took the place of cheers, for it seemed that the adventure was about to end in tragedy! But fortune waved her wand far enough to save the bold men from death. Although much of the hot air had been lost, some was left in the bag, and it eased the fall. Only Joseph Montgolfier was hurt, and his injury was not serious, hardly more than a scratch.
